LIBRARY REPORT

The librarian of the Weeks Public Library submits the twenty-fourth annual report for the year 1921-'22.

Because of our larger appropriation we have been able to open twice a week during the year, having lost two days only—Washington's Birthday and a day of heavy snows. The schools continue to make extensive use of our books and perhaps because of an interest so aroused an increasing number of children are becoming regular borrowers. They are allowed cards of their own when they are able to write their names with ink.

37 borrowers have been added to our list during the year and the circulation has been 5623 volumes, which is larger by 850 than the largest we have achieved before.

Some of the best of the year's books of general literature have been added and their cost is so great that with the continued price of fiction and children's books we have not added quite as many volumes as last year, but our numbers of accession is now 7910.

Four volumes were presented in addition to the usual number of reports, which we have ceased to catalog and to place upon our shelves, since they are not called for and would take up valuable space.

Following is a list of the year's accensions:

Report of the Superintendent of Schools

Feb. 1, 1922.

To the Board of Education:

In considering this report, you will note that four weeks on the field as superintendent has allowed time only for a brief survey of the condition and needs of the schools.

INFLUENCE OF THE NEW SCHOOL HOUSE

So far as I am able to judge at this time, I find that the school has been very well conducted this year. Ideals of study, industry, right living and good citizenship are being fostered. Good work is being done in the regular school subjects and in manual training and physical training. Greenland is fortunate both in having board members who are efficient and interested in the schools and in having a body of teachers who are devoting themselves to the welfare of the children. Under the capable leadership of the Principal, they have developed a school spirit among the children that makes for good order in the school and interests the children in healthful living.

INFLUENCE OF THE SCHOOL—HOUSE

The new building with its fine appointments for the comfort and the work of the children is a credit to the town and to those who planned and built it. It would be a credit to any town or city. Its influence for good upon the children is already showing returns worth more than double its cost. Even the teachers work better in rooms where there is proper equipment and where things are convenient for school work. Good lighting, good ventilation, and a comfortable temperature in the school-room, to say nothing of cleanliness, all have their effect on the lives and work of the pupils. The pride they take in their school is reflected in their belief in themselves. It fosters ambition. And develops a loyalty to the school that will later be of untold benefit to the community in which they live. Their success in their daily lessons is greater than it could possibly be in poor quarters even with the same books and teachers.

PERMANENT TEACHERS

Probably none of the capable young women who are working in the school would care to consider herself a permanent fixture there, much as she may like Greenland. But, from the point of view of the town, that is, the welfare of all the children, teachers should be retained as permanently as possible. Granted that you get good teachers to begin with, then keep them. Keep them contented and happy in the community. Let them grow with their work and enlarge their work as they increase in teaching power from year to year.

Up to a certain limit, a teacher is worth more to a town every year that she teaches. Especially is this true of the second year. To reach the mind of a child and be able to mould and develop it, a teacher should know the child and its parents, should know the home life and the community, should understand the problems of her school, and should be familiar with the progress pupils had made in their studies.

Not in one year can these things be learned. All this valuable knowledge of child life, all the growth from wise supervision of Principal and Superintendent, all the development fostered by co-operation of other teachers and parents, is lost if you lose the teacher. True the next teacher should bring knowledge and experience with her, but she cannot make her experience fit her work in a month or in several months. A town that changes teachers every year loses more by the change than any town ever put into increases of teachers' salaries. Our proximity to Massachusetts, where higher salaries are paid is bound to make us bid more to retain our teachers, but, believe me, they are worth keeping.

CO-OPERATION OF THE PARENTS

A town should do more for its schools than to provide the money. Take an interest in them. Be broad-minded enough to feel that the teachers do not have to do just as they did in your school, then visit the school, and see the good work they are doing. You may learn something about Johnny that will surprise you. At least have Johnny there every day on time and keep in touch with the people whose one business in life is to work for the good of your boys and girls. The Parent-Teacher Association where parents and teachers are working together for the school is one of the finest agencies for securing better results in the class-room. It generates good feeling and that will do the rest.
